

6 Nations Rugby France Vs England Stade de France, Paris.

Saturday 20th March 2010. KO – 20:45 (Local)

England cross the channel for a trip to the Stade de France in Paris for a titanic encounter against France. The last meeting of these teams in Paris was a nail biting game from which England emerged victorious thanks to a last minute try from Richard Wigglesworth, and the boot of Jonny Wilkinson.

With this being the final game of the tournament both teams will be playing for honour and quite possibly the silver trophy presented to the winners of the 6 Nations.

With England having not won the Championship since the World Cup winning year of 2003, and the French lacking the trophy since 2007 both teams will be determined to make this a Grand Slam deciding match.

Your full pre and post match hospitality will take place at the Ibis hotel which is situated two minutes from the stadium.

Private tables are available for 10 or 12 guests, with smaller numbers accommodated on shared tables.
