

2010 FIFA World Cup. South Africa.

11th June – 11th July 2010.

The World's best football talent heads to South Africa for an event that will be truly historic. This will be the first time that an African nation has hosted football's biggest prize.

After all the drama in the 2006 Final between Italy and France from which Italy emerged victorious other leading football nations such as Brazil, Spain and of course England will be looking to stake their claim to be known as the new World champions.

With Spain having dominated European football for the last 2 years since claiming the European Championships they may go in to the tournament as favourites but that will not stop all others of dreaming and believing that they can claim the famous gold trophy.
